

NAME: Rob Parker-McQuillan

CLASS OF: 2006

Keen to study medicine, after sixth-form I attended the University of Sheffield. During university, I had the amazing and humbling opportunity to work in rural New Zealand providing medical care to pregnant women in remote clinics. After graduating in 2011, I have pursued a career in Acute Medicine having a specialist interest in the relatively new field of Obstetric Medicine, which I truly love. I look back fondly at school and cherish the relationships I made, and am proud of where my friends are with their lives today. The best thing I have learned is to make what you're passionate about your work. Do what you enjoy. You'll more likely succeed and be happier because of it.
